FIVE BRITISH WARSHIPS SUNK IN ENGAGEMENT WITH GERMANS; TEUTON LOSSES ARE SLIGHT

Battleship and Four Cruisers Are Declared to Have Gone Down.

FEW OF THE CREWS SURVIVE

German Admiralty Statement Declares All Night Battle Favors the Germans; Torpedo Boats on Both Sides Sent to Bottom; Kitchner Beheaded.

By Associated Press

BERLIN, June 2.—The German admiralty announced today that the German high sea fleet on May 31 had encountered a British fighting fleet. The engagement which developed, the admiralty says, was favorable to the Germans. The battle continued all night.

The German admiralty announces that the large British battleship Worcester, the battle cruiser Queen Mary and Indefatigable, and two armored cruisers were destroyed.

It is also reported that a small British cruiser, a number of torpedo boats and torpedo destroyers were lost. The statement adds that by observation it was established that a large number of British battleships suffered damage from the fire of the German ships and the attacks of the torpedo boat flotilla.

The admiralty statement also declares that the British battleship Marlborough was hit by a torpedo, this being confirmed by the prisoners rescued. Several of the German ships rescued parts of the crews of the British ships which were sunk together. It is said, two men from the Indefatigable, the only survivors from that ship.

On the German side, the small cruiser Wiesbaden was sunk by gunfire and the Donau was sent to the bottom by a torpedo. The fate of the Frauenfeld is not known and some torpedo boats did not return. The German high sea fleet, the statement adds, returned to port June 1.

LONDON, June 2.—The British admiralty announced today that a battle had occurred in the North Sea between the British and German fleets in the course of which a number of German warships were sunk. The British battleship Queen Mary and Indefatigable and the battleship Invincible were sunk.

The cruiser Defence and Black Prince also were sunk, and the cruiser Warrior was disabled. The German losses are described as serious. The announcement says two German battle cruisers were sunk and two German light cruisers were disabled and probably sunk.

KITCHENER HURLED.
LONDON, June 2.—Earl Kitchener had today what was for him the unique experience of being heckled by parliamentary critics of the war office.

Complying with the promise made on his behalf in the House of Commons by the parliamentary under-secretary for war, Harold J. Tennant, in response to complaints of members that they had not had opportunity to question the secretary for war, the famous general went to one of the committee rooms of the House prepared to make a statement on the conduct of the war and reply to questions.

The war secretary was accompanied by several members of his staff and the political heads of the war office. He faced some 20 members including what are known as the "right group" composed of men who demand more vigorous prosecution of the war.

The public was excluded rigorously. Indeed, the whole of Westminster Palace was shut off to avoid leakage of any secret information which might be elicited.

POPE ONLY SEEKS PEACE.
ROME, June 2.—Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, in an interview today with a representative of the Associated Press, declared that the Pope was influenced in his peace efforts solely by a desire to stop the "suicide of Europe."

"The holy father," said the cardinal, "in his most ardent desire for peace has no particular interest in view, despite what newspapers that are enemies of the papacy state to the contrary. If peace is concluded through the friendly intervention of the President of the great American republic, or through his Catholic majesty, the King of Spain, his holiness will equally thank the Almighty that an end should at last have been put to the butchery which is the suicide of Europe."

FRENCH GAIN SLIGHTLY.
PARIS, June 2.—In the course of heavy fighting on the Verdun front which continued through the night the French progressed slightly south of Caubert wood, the war office announced today.

The struggle between Thionville and Vaux, east of the Meuse, is described as extremely violent.

The artillery action on both sides was exceptionally heavy throughout yesterday and last night.

BERLIN, via London, June 2.—The capture of Caubert wood south of Fort Douaumont on the Verdun front and of adjoining trenches was announced today by the war office.

A counter attack by the French southwest of Vaux wood was a failure, although made in strong force, the statement adds.

The capture of 76 officers and 2,000 men, 3 guns and more than a score of machine guns is reported.

KAISER ON EAST FRONT.
BERLIN, June 2.—Emperor William is on a tour of the eastern front. The official statement says:

"The Emperor has left the army group of Field Marshal Hindenburg in order to visit other army groups on the eastern front. He arrived on May 31 at the army group of Prince Leopold of Bavaria."

TWO KILLED, 7 MISSING; 10 HURT WHEN BRIDGE COLLAPSES

Train Plunges Into Creek Near Packard, Pa.; Mail Train Blown Off Tracks.

By Associated Press

PACKARD, Pa., June 2.—Two women were killed and 10 persons were injured as the result of the collapse of the bridge over Cold Water Creek near here early today under the weight of the northbound passenger train No. 19 on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad. In addition to the two dead, seven persons are missing and are believed to be dead either by drowning or as the result of their injuries.

When the train turned over many of the passengers smashed the windows of the coaches and crawled out onto the side of the cars where they remained until taken off by rescuers in boats.

The storm which reached the proportions of a cloudburst, nearly paralyzed wire communication. The sleeping cars remained on the track and the passengers aided in the work of rescue.

BLOOMINGTON, June 2.—A tornado blew the Chicago, St. Louis fast mail train No. 17 on the Wabash railroad from the tracks near Sauget, Ill., early today, injuring 18 persons, one man high sea fleet, the statement adds, returned to port June 1.

The combination baggage and smoking car and four coaches were blown from the track. A Pullman sleeper crashed through the smoking car. It was in the smoking car that the most injuries to passengers occurred.

His Secretary's Statement is Quite a Jolt for Hitchcock.

MAKES STIR ON CANDIDATE ROW

Penrose Declares Three-Fourths of the Pennsylvania Delegates Will Go to the Convention Uninstructed Despite the Claim of Brumbaugh.

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 2.—When inquiry was made of Justice Hughes whether Frank H. Hitchcock is representing him at Chicago, the justice's secretary, Lawrence H. Green, made the following statement:

"It is perfectly well understood that Justice Hughes has no representative."

CHICAGO, June 2.—Consideration of claims of contesting delegates to the national convention was resumed today by the Republican National Committee, which opened its deliberations here yesterday with a continuous session lasting more than nine hours.

The result of yesterday's work was a decision in the cases of 15 delegates, nine from Georgia and seven from Alabama.

Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania, who arrived today, said: "Three-fourths of the 76 delegates from Pennsylvania are uninstructed. We are going to do what in our judgment is best for the interests of the Republican party at this time. We have no preference at this stage of the proceedings. The claim made by friends of Governor Brumbaugh that they will have half of the Pennsylvania delegation is untrue."

Henry G. Wasson, national committeeman from Pennsylvania and one of the leaders of the Brumbaugh faction, today expressed the opinion that Roosevelt is the second choice of about 60 of the 76 delegates from that state. He claims 41 votes for Governor Brumbaugh on the first ballot.

DISCUSS CHAIRMAN

Senator James Favored as Permanent By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Selection of the permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention at St. Louis was expected late today at a conference between President Wilson and Fred B. Lynch, chairman of the executive committee of the national organization. Mr. Lynch arrived today to discuss campaign plans with the President and especially to settle the permanent chairmanship.

Senator James of Kentucky is said to be most prominently considered for the permanent chairmanship. Senator Kern of Indiana and Senator Stone of Missouri are also under consideration. If Senator James, who presided at Baltimore four years ago, is chosen, many Democratic leaders are urging that Senator Stone be chosen chairman of the resolutions or platform drafting committee.

MAY A WARM MONTH

SCHOOL BOARD DECLARES NO CARNIVAL WILL USE FIELD

Injunction Talked of if Doris Shows Attempt to Show More Carni- vals Coming.

Members of School Board say that the carnival booked for Connellsville next week will not show on Fayette Field, notwithstanding the fact that it has been leased by H. C. Hays, formerly lessee of the grounds. They say that Mr. Hays had no authority to give the shows permission to use the ground and that if an attempt is made to pitch the tents there an injunction will be secured to restrain them from staying.

School Board recently leased the field from the Baltimore & Ohio railroad for athletic purposes with the understanding that it might sublet it to traveling attractions. The lease has been approved by the real estate department of the road but the contract has not yet been returned to School Board. In the meantime Mr. Hays reached the conclusion that he never surrendered his control of the field and granted the carnival permission to show. Events of the next few days will prove who really controls the field.

Two carnivals will visit Connellsville during this month, one next week. The Doris Doris Exhibition will come in Sunday night to exhibit, and the Con T. Kennedy shows are returning again this year for a week's engagement on the West Side under the auspices of the New Haven Volunteer Fire Department.

East Side parties are supposed to be backing the Doris shows, but the manager says he would have come in anyway, even if he had to do it independently. Just where the Doris shows will exhibit is not known. School Board says that Fayette Field has not been leased but the manager says he got it from other parties.

The Great Empire Shows were to exhibit here the week of June 12th for the benefit of the Macabees, but this date has been cancelled. The engagement will be held the week of the 26th a delegation of firemen visited the Macabees and expressed the hope that they could make good if the shows both came at once. The Macabees withdrew in favor of the firemen.

The Con T. Kennedy shows exhibited here two years ago for the benefit of the volunteer company. It is considered the largest carnival on the road. The Kennedy shows will be on the West Side grounds.

CHAUTAUQUA DATES NAMED; COURSE BEGINS ON AUGUST 5

Local Chautauqua Committee is Vali- dized as to Time for Week's En- tertainment.

The chautauqua will be held here during the week beginning August 5. Word to this effect was sent the local committee by the Redpath Broadway bureau in Pittsburgh. No announcement has yet been made as to the program, but it is declared to be up to the local high standard.

A meeting of the chautauqua committee will be held next week to arrange further details of the coming entertainment.

The large tent is almost certain to be erected on the South Side but whether the same lot as last year will be used has not been decided. Some members of the committee favor locating on the tabernacle lot.

After a meeting of the committee tickets will be put on sale. It will be necessary for 750 to be held in order to insure the success of the entertainment. There are 35 guarantors who will make up any deficit, but there are no accounts to have enough books sold to cover all expenses and leave something clear for next year.

TAXES ARE BOOSTED

South Connellsville Borough Levy Is 6 Mills Higher.

At a meeting of the South Connellsville council last night the tax levy for 1916 was fixed at 11 mills, 12 mills for general purposes and two for the sinking fund.

This is an increase of six mills, the 1915 assessment having been 5 mills. A decreased valuation accounts for some of the increase but the remainder was to prevent the borough from going into debt for the year. The revenue for general borough purposes this year will be $2,000 more than last year.

The millage has been too low in the past, borough officials say, making it impossible to meet expenses. Council left with the board of health the question of whether the keeping of pigs within the borough shall be abandoned. The board recommends such action, although the members of council seemed to oppose it.

Supplies Goggles Free.

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad has adopted goggles for the use of employees who need them. The goggles are furnished free.

COUNCILMEN HOLD CONFAB WITH THE WATER OFFICIALS

Discuss Proposed Plan to Purchase Plant at Four- Hour Conference.

RESULTS NOT MADE PUBLIC

Opinion Prevails That Agreement is Not Far Off; Second Time Officials of Company Have Come to Town to Discuss Pending Negotiations.

Members of city council and Solicitor E. C. Higgins yesterday held a four-hour conference with A. M. Lyman, president of the American Water Works & Electric Company, E. M. Watt, vice president of the same company, and R. V. Little, local superintendent of the Connellsville Water Company. An extended discussion of the city's negotiations for the purchase of the water company's plant took place at city hall, the result of which has not been made public.

Members of council would not discuss the conference and the water company officials could not be reached but it was indicated that the negotiations were nearer some sort of a definite conclusion than ever.

The water company officials were never before sufficiently interested to make special trips here to talk the matter over with council, was the comment of one man who is in a position to know something about the matter.

This is the second conference between the heads of the company that controls the water company and city officials this year. On February 22, the same officials and their attorneys spent an afternoon with the council, at which time the matter was gone into at some length. The meeting did not last as long as the one yesterday, however.

At the last municipal election the electors approved a bond issue sufficient to purchase the plant of the Connellsville Water Company or to erect a municipal plant. Since that time council and the water company have been dickering over a price. A complete victory of the company's property was prepared at the time the officials testified here in February to show council what the plant consists of.

Some months ago, Councilman John Duggan, who has been aggressive in his opposition to the water company's methods here, declared that he would take steps to attack its charter if there were no other way of bringing it to terms.

MAY RAISE RATES.

Physicians of County Contemplate Changing Present Fees.

An increase in fees was discussed at the regular meeting of the Fayette County Medical Society held last evening in the First National Bank building in Uniontown. The doctors claim that owing to the constantly advancing price of drugs and other materials used by them an advance in fees is necessary.

Dr. H. C. Hoffman read an interesting paper on "Methods of Diagnosis." The topic was generally discussed. It was decided to hold the annual picnic the second week in July at the Summit Hotel. About 45 doctors attended.

Special to The Courier.
UNIONTOWN, June 2.—Mrs. Maud Lescheky, through Attorney John Duggan, Jr., this afternoon filed a suit against the Pittsburgh Coal Company, asking $20,000 damages for the death of John Lescheky. Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With the Othine Prescription. The prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by any druggist under guarantee to refund the money if it fails. Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of Othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength Othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.—Adv.

HELD FOR MURDER

Providence Youth Must Answer
Charge of Killing Girl.

By Associated Press.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 2.—
James O'Brien, who first reported the shooting of Beatrice Walter, a girl who worked in a jewelry shop with him, to her father early yesterday, was held by the police to answer for her death. Chief Inspector O'Neill announced that O'Brien would be accused tomorrow on a charge of murder.

Miss Walter was the daughter of William H. Walter, municipal inspector of boats.

When O'Brien went to the girl's father, he said the shooting took place in a vacant lot near her home. According to the police, later he is said to have claimed that a revolver fell from her hand and that she was accidentally shot.

A subsequent story attributed to O'Brien by the police was that the young woman shot herself after saying several times: "It would be nice to read our advertising columns."

Claims Trotter Empire 'Was Unfair and Quits Field.

Manager Cover of the Trotter also acted as umpire and to him Davidson lays all its troubles. Davidson claims that he not only helped Trotter along at the bases but signaled the batter what was coming with the result that the first two men at bat got two-base hits.

INTEREST GROWS IN THE SERVICES AT DUNBAR

Rev. R. L. Hays Continues to Discuss Religious Topics at St. Allyn's Church.

Interest continues to grow in the lectures being given to non-Catholics by Rev. R. L. Hays of the Pittsburgh Apostolate at the St. Allyn's Church at Dunbar. The subject of the sermon on Wednesday evening was "Confession: Can a Priest Forgive Sin?"

It was unusually fine. Rev. Hays spoke last evening on "Authority in Religion, or the Pope." He explained the infallibility of the Pope of Rome in the Catholic religion, stating that the Pope is infallible when he speaks "ex cathedra" or, in other words, when he speaks for the Catholic Church. He stated that in the teachings and doctrines pertaining to the church the Pope cannot err.

Many have taken advantage of the Question Box through which is explained anything which the inquirer is doubtful of pertaining to the Catholic faith.

Rev. Hays' wonderful delivery and extensive vocabulary have gained him quite a reputation as a missionary, not only in Dunbar but in many other places where he has conducted non-Catholic lectures.

The subject of his sermon tonight will be "The Bible and the Church." Literature containing facts about the church is distributed after the lecture. The services close each evening with benediction.

LABOR SHORTAGE

In The Pochontus Region Is Becoming Much More Serious.

The labor shortage in the Pochontus region is becoming more serious, owing to the steady migration of mine workers to other states and the absence of any important offset in the way of new arrivals. It is reported that Italian miners have been advised by their consuls to seek work in mining plants that are engaged in mine orders for Italy, while the high wages offered for unskilled labor by such establishments also make a strong appeal.

The prohibition law is still another factor in causing foreigners to leave, although the operators claim that the men who do remain are more steady and efficient workers as a result of the law.

RAILROAD DISPUTE IS KEENLY WATCHED BY THE STATESMEN

Belief Exists in the Capital
That There Will be No Serious Break.

GENERAL STRIKE NOT EXPECTED

Fear That Employees May Settle With Each Road Separately Leads to the Conclusion That Serious Difficulties
May Be Successfully Averted.

Special to The Courier.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Officials in the national capital were keenly interested in the opening yesterday in New York of the series of conferences between representatives of the leading railroads of the United States and of the engineers, firemen, conductors and trainmen of the roads who recently presented demands, the most important of which were for an eight hour day with time and a half pay for all overtime. The railroads were prepared today to ask the representatives of the employees to consider counter proposals, which provide that there shall be no double compensation, as is demanded at times now by the employees, for the same time or service; and that in considering the compensation to be paid to them on a run the same classification shall apply to all members of a train and engine crew, that is, that if a train happens, as is now the case frequently, that an engineer or some other member of a crew is paid on a through-freight classification whereas other members of the crew are paid on a local-freight classification, the claim by one or more members of the crew for the higher basis of compensation being based on the fact that the train may have started out as a through freight and changed along the route to a local freight.

In spite of the complexity of the situation and difficulties in the way, most officials here expressed themselves today as hopeful that the roads and their employees will be able to find a middle ground on which they can adjust their differences without resort to a disastrous strike. The conferences which began yesterday are expected to last a week or ten days, and the opinion here is that the matter finally will be submitted to arbitration and will in the end reach a conclusion satisfactory to both sides.

The opinion is that the situation at times may look threatening, before the question at issue is adjusted. It is not believed, however, that there will be any serious threat of a final break between the roads and their employees, at least not a general break. In the case of one or more individual roads there is a possibility, it is admitted, that the breaking point will be reached, if not actually accomplished, that as will be recalled, the demands of the engineers and other employees affected were presented separately to the roads with the understanding that the employees of any one or more roads could make their peace separately with their road without reference to what the employees of another line might do if their demands were not granted.

FOREIGN RAILWAY MATERIAL

Appears to Give Better Service Than That Manufactured in U. S.
Foreign railway material, the Bureau of Standards at Washington has announced, after an investigation covering rail accidents in the United States and abroad, appears to perform its duties better than American equipment.

The report shows that derailments in the United States are twenty-six times more numerous for each 1,000 miles of track than in Great Britain; three times as numerous as in Germany, but not so numerous as in Austria-Hungary. In terms of passengers carried, the American and Austrian derailments are about the same, but the American are nearly 600 times the British and twenty-four times the German.

Low accident and derailment figures are shown for France, Russia and Sweden. In France one person is injured in every 2,000,000 transported; in the United States it is 11 persons in 2,000,000.

Rail breakages in France are given as one in 2,000 and in Germany one in 1,350. In the United States one rail in 170 is found defective.

NEXT YEAR'S REQUIREMENTS

Being Figured Upon By Some Buyers of Steel Labor a Big Factor.
Confidence in the continuation of prosperity for at least another year is shown by the action of some of the largest buyers of steel plates in the country, who have approached representatives of mills in the hope of making contracts for requirements through all of next year, says The Iron Trade Review. One buyer would like to contract for 24,000 tons and another for 7,500 tons. Mills are not willing, however, to make contracts at the present time for delivery so far in the future.

The Lukens Iron & Steel Company is operating under such tremendous demand that its own steel production is not sufficient to meet requirements of the rolling mills and has bought 10,000 tons of billets and slabs of other steelmakers, both in the east and middle west, paying $50, delivered. The labor factor is having an important bearing on the general situation, owing to inefficiency and shortage of employees.

The pig iron market is quiet and in some sections, particularly in the south, shows a tendency to sag. Tremendous demands for materials for the highways still find expression in inquiries for very large tonnages of billets, wire products and other forms of steel.

SOUTHERN COKE STRONG.

Producers Hold Firm to Established Market Prices.
The Birmingham coke market seems likely to remain strong for an indefinite period, says The Daily Iron Trade. An offer of 34.25 for standard best quality foundry on the part of the Pacific coast consumer was declined and the order booked at the prevailing quotations of $15.00 f. o. b. ovens.

The Sayre and Coalburg bed live plants will soon be in operation supplying, however, only the Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Company Consumption in the Birmingham district is large.

GERMANS WANT TO KEEP FOREIGNERS OUT OF COLLEGES

Movement is Revived to Curtail the Privileges of All Outsiders.

TEUTONS FIRST, IS THE PLEA

Latest Proposal is That Lecture Seats Shall Not Be Given Any of the Foreign Students Until Every German Has Been Taken Care Of.

By Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 2.—The old opposition to the unrestricted admittance of foreigners to the German universities has sprung up, in new form, in a movement for the exclusion from university privileges after the war of all that is non-German. This opposition before the war was directed principally against Russian Jews, who flocked to German colleges in great numbers, and the admission had to certain restrictive measures aimed at that element.

The new movement is directed against foreigners generally. Apparently it originated among German students who considered it an injustice to themselves to allow lecture rooms and laboratories to be overcrowded with foreigners.

The students at several universities have already adopted resolutions, not demanding the total exclusion of foreigners, but the relegation of them to a secondary position in the enjoyment of university privileges. It is demanded, in particular, that no foreign student shall select a seat for any course of lectures, or a position at laboratory tables, before all the Germans have made their selections. The contention of the students is that, inasmuch as the German people are taxed for the support of the universities, it is only fair that Germans have first choice of seats and other facilities, and foreigners should be content to take what is left, or do without seats altogether when none is left.

The question came up recently in the Prussian Chamber during the discussion of the educational and church budget. A National Liberal speaker took much the same stand as the students, emphasizing the idea that the universities exist primarily to subserve German interests. The speaker said that, while he did not want hermetically to seal the universities against foreigners, still some things in Germany's anti-Jewish practice must be changed, forms of admission for foreigners must be closed against them altogether, "whenever German interests are even remotely endangered by admitting them." In this connection he alluded to the Japanese "who learned from us the use of arms, only to turn them against us at a moment when we needed all our fists for pounding our enemies."

Dr. Fritz zu Soltz, the minister of education and religion, said the complaints about the bad things caused by foreigners at the universities are very much exaggerated, but that the whole subject must be re-examined after the war. While avoiding expressly any intimation as to what might be done then, he said that the question must be settled from the standpoint of German interests. The minister thought that the whole general attitude of Germans toward foreigners called for a revision. The minister began his budget speech by referring to the fact that Prussia was keeping up her educational and cultural activity unabated. Schools of all grades, scientific establishments, and art museums, he said, had been kept open uninterruptedly since the war began.

A socialist speaker declared his party to be in favor of the proposition that the universities exist primarily for the home population, but he demanded that foreigners be treated with liberality. The Socialists also brought in a series of resolutions demanding that the schools be secularized and religious institutions abolished, and that a national and uniform type of school be adopted. These changes, however, were opposed by the Conservatives, Clericals, and National Liberals, who constitute a very great majority in the Chamber.

NOW NEW WOMAN DUE TO TANLAC REMEDY LAUDED

Mrs. Hegarty Surprised Tanlac Man by Remarkable Restoration to Health.

"Don't you know me, Mr. Kohlen?" "Certainly do not. I never saw you before."

Don't you remember the woman, that had to be half carried into Turner's Drug Store six weeks ago, when you first came to Altoona, and bought a bottle of Tanlac?"

"Yes, I remember that incident."

"Well, I am that woman, Mrs. Hegarty. Then I was so sick from nervousness and sick stomach, that I could not walk a square without being assisted. Now I am strong and vigorous and in perfect health, after only taking three bottles of Tanlac. The doctors had said that I was a nervous wreck and never would be well again. Look at me now. I do not look as if I had ever been sick a day, so my friends and relatives say. I'll say they are telling the truth, because I am so happy over my recovery."

So said Mrs. H. K. Hegarty of Bellwood, near Altoona, Pa., to Mr. Kohlen, the Tanlac Man, at the Turner Drug Company's Store, 1115 Eleventh Avenue, Altoona.

Mr. Kohlen stated that when Mrs. Hegarty came to the Turner Store and bought a bottle of Tanlac, she was the sickest woman he had ever seen. Now she is the very picture of health.

Tanlac is now sold in Connellsville exclusively by The Connellsville Drug Co., where the premier preparation can be had.

Tanlac can also be secured at D. C. Eason's Drug Store, Dunbar, Pa.—Adv

CHINESE REBELS ARE STRONG BUT NOT IN HARMONY

Lack of Co-Operation Results in Advantage for Yuan Shi-Kai.

THE REVOLT SEEMS TO GROW

Whether the President Will be Overthrown, or Forced to Accept a Responsible Cabinet Remains to be Seen; Disorders Throughout Empire

By Associated Press.

PEKING, June 2.—So much confusion reigns in South China that it is impossible to determine exactly what the status of many of the Southern provinces is at this particular time. Yunnan, Kwel-chow and Kwang-si provinces not only declared their independence of the Peking government, but allied themselves together in a movement to preserve the republic. Kwang-tung, Kiang-si and Cho-kiang provinces have declared their independence, but have not allied themselves with the other three provinces. In other words, Kwang-tung, Che-kiang and Kiang-si provinces have proclaimed themselves neutral. They are protecting themselves against both the government and the rebel troops, and their action seems to have been inspired more by a desire to preserve internal peace and prevent the disturbance of ordinary commercial transactions rather than to protest against the Peking government or show sympathy with the movement for a southern republic.

When Kwang-tung province, with the important city of Canton, declared its independence, the enemies of the Peking government felt that Yuan Shi-kai's fate was sealed. However, the revolutionary leaders in Kwang-tung are so unfriendly to each other and have had so many dissensions that Kwang-tung's secession seems to have little effect on the national situation.

On April 12, representatives of the warring political factions in Canton held a general meeting to discuss the situation. The leaders of the conference disagreed so violently that revolvers were drawn and men outside the conference room fired rifles at the members. Tang Kow-tan and Wang Kwang-tai, the superintendent of police at Canton, were killed and Chu Chien, leader of the progressive party, was seriously wounded. Rebels have been inspired by the unsettled conditions to engage in looting the northern districts of Kwang-tung, and the province has been compelled to issue a manifesto preventing both the government troops and the revolutionists from crossing its borders.

various ambitious revolutionary leaders have neutralized the revolutionary movement very considerably, and played strongly into the hands of Yuan Shi-kai and his cohorts. The president is now said to be quite willing to accept the guidance of a responsible premier and cabinet, and also to have a parliament elected at an election not manipulated by the central government. These concessions would reconcile Tsai Ao, who is probably the biggest leader in the revolution, as he has actually taken the field and directed the revolution.

RIGHT HANDED BATTERS WANTED

Vogues of Southpaw Swatters
Is Now on the Wane.

MANY DON'T BAT NATURALLY

Years Ago It Was Pointed Out by Managers That Left Hand Hitter Had Advantage—The Result Was Nearly Every One Shifted From Right to Left Handed Batting.

If I were a young ball player contemplating a diamond career I would try to be a right handed batsman on a left handed pitcher, preferably the former. There already is a growing demand for the right handed batters, and unless this is a hunch guess the output of south paw pitchers is going to exceed the consumption in a few years at most, says Cy Sunko.

There are so many good players batting left handed nowadays that almost any left handed pitcher of average ability is pretty sure to get by in the big leagues. To offset that the club owners are beginning to look for good players who swing from the north side of the plate so as to break up attempts to outguess batting by using left handed pitchers.

The White Sox this year are an illustration. Rowland has a team of good batsmen, but so many of them bat left handed that they have to face a lot of southpaw pitching, and against it the heartiest criticism on the team are comparative levelers. If he had one or two good right handed swatters on the team Rowland would be better equipped.

Cubs of 1915 Victims.
The same was true of the Cubs last season. And the world's champion Braves had to carry a double set of outfielders to get away from a steady succession of southpaw pitchers. There are other teams looking for right handed batsmen of ability, but it seems as if all the promising young talent bat left handed.

There is reason for this, of course. The young player sees men like Ty Cobb, Joe Jackson, Larry Doyle and Eddie Collins up there near the top year after year, and he knows they all bat left handed. His first manager tells him of the advantage possessed by the left handed batsman in getting down to first base a couple of steps quicker than the man who bats right handed, but he doesn't tell the youngster how hard it is for a left handed batsman to hit left handed pitching. It is taken for granted he will face a southpaw only occasionally. So the youngster turns around and learns to bat left handed, just as Buck Weaver did after joining the White Sox.

Don't Bat Naturally.
After years of watching and discussing the problem experts come to the conclusion the real reason why the left handed batsman finds so much more trouble with southpaw pitching than the right handed batsman does with right handed pitching is the fact the man who bats from the first base side of the plate usually is batting unskillfully.

Of course there are left handed players to whom it is perfectly natural to bat that way. But the men who do everything (except bats) right handed never acquire the same facility against all kinds of pitching that they would have if they batted naturally.

Any right handed person can practice writing with his left hand until he can do so legibly, but he never can learn to write as well with his left hand as he could have learned to write naturally. It is the same with batting. They can learn to hit successfully against right handed pitching because it is difficult for a right hander to foot them with curves, but when they get up against a man who pitches naturally from the south side of the anatomy the converted left handed batsman is handicapped.

How Southpaw Batters Lead.
It probably will be asked how is it the left handed batsman manages to lead their respective teams and leagues so often. There are several reasons. The first is that they would not lead in batting if they faced southpaw pitching as often as they do the other kind. And there is no disputing the advantage the left handed swatter has in beating out infield hits. He does not have as far to travel as the right hander and is in motion toward first when he hits the ball.

There is another advantage which the left handed swatter has about which the public is not well informed. That is the growing tendency of scorers to exempt fielders from errors when handling balls hit by left handers. The argument always is that the infielder has to hurry, so that if he misses the play he should not be charged with an error. That boosts the left hander's batting average a lot.

MAGEE DIDN'T KNOW HOW TRULY HE SPOKE

Among the near-Feds is young New York Yankee pitcher, Cliff Mackie, who has made a great record for himself this spring. A year ago Mackie wrote Lee Magee, then beginning a temporary career as manager of the Yankees, asking for a change to pitch. Magee knew the youngster and in a letter to Mackie advised him to stick another year in the minors and develop.

"You will be with me in 1916, old boy," wrote Magee, but the fulfillment of this prophecy did not come along the lines Magee had in mind.

SOISSON THEATRE.

"THE DAUGHTER OF THE SEA." The Equitable Motion Picture Company present the beautiful actress, Muriel Ostiche at the Soisson Theatre today in the five reel drama, "The Daughter of the Sea." It is a pretty tale of a fisher girl, who rescues a society woman from the angry sea billows. The woman becomes interested in the fisher girl and takes her home with her to educate her. She is not happy with the new society life and longs for her old father. The son of the society woman has fallen in love with the girl and wants to marry her. Later many difficulties arise but all ends well with the fisher girl spending her honeymoon at her old home along the sea coast. "Caly's Gasoline Glider" is a two reel 1-2-3 comedy featuring Gertrude Selby and Billie Armstrong. This picture put five players in the hospital but it was well worth it. It is full of vim, vigor and vitality. It is the old, old story but it has a decidedly different ending. Two fellows love Gaby. One has a two seater motorcycle and the other a real automobile and they have some time getting ahead of each other. "The Three Wishes" is a Victor drama starring Mary Fuller. It is a tender little drama of motherhood. Animated Weekly No. 20 has many interesting scenes. One hundred miles an hour, ending Mexican conference, 145,000 march for preparedness and many others are shown. Tomorrow the "World Film Company" present the screen artist, Alice Brady in the five reel drama, "The Woman in 47." The story is that of a young and beautiful Italian girl who escapes from the tyranny of a cruel uncle, comes to this country to meet and marry her lover, and passes through a series of adventures which combine to make one of the most thrilling and absorbing photodramas ever shown on the screen before the final ending. Love, honesty and pure as well as ill will and generous, falls to her lot, unconsciously and unintentionally she exercises a wonderful, almost wizard, fascination over every man who sees her, death and disaster follow in the train of efforts to encompass her ruin. In the end she emerges triumphant in the standard affection of her boyhood companion. The play will hold the unwavering of those who see it from the start to the finish.

THE GLOBE.

"BEN BLAIR"—Presenting Dustin Farnum as "Ben Blair," the strong-hearted plainsman in the Pallas picture, is the attraction today at the Globe. Mr. Farnum is given a role that wins respect and sympathy of all who enjoy a stirring western story. In this production Dustin Farnum has an exceptionally suitable part to display his robust talents. The screen adaptation is from the well known book, "Ben Blair," written by the late Will Lillibridge. Winifred Kingston plays the leading feminine role. The scenes of the bronco busting, trick riding, branding and in fact almost all the out of door scenes in the Pallas production, "Ben Blair," were taken on a ranch belonging to one of the last of the cattle barons. The thousands of acres of rolling lands sustain 60,000 head of cattle. In strong contrast is the scene that represents the exterior of the Winthrop city house. Here the modeling of Ben and the girl, who wishes to forget, was played before a mansion in the most exclusive residential district of Los Angeles, Cal. The structure is acknowledged to be one of the most beautiful among the beautiful homes and cost over $125,000. Ben Blair, who is born in the heart of all possible conditions by misfortune, is able to gain a true benefactor and rise to a place where he has the right to try for the hand of Florence Winthrop, the eastern girl. Tomorrow, "The Unknown," an Essanay drama in three parts, will be shown. Monday, "The Come-Back," a five part Metro production, starring Harold Lockwood and May Allison, will be the attraction. Tuesday Fannie Ward, the distinguished American actress, will be seen in "For the Defense," a Paramount feature in five acts.

CLASSMATES OPPONENTS

W. & J. Men, Who Married Society Girls, Seek Same Odds.
Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, June 1.—Classmates at Washington & Jefferson College, both of whom married prominent society girls in Washington, are opposing each other as candidates for the state legislature from the second district of Fayette county. They are James Espey Sherrard and William McDowell Bryson, both of Uniontown. They received their diplomas at Washington & Jefferson College in June, 1911, standing high in their class. Both expect to attend the first five-year reunion of the class at Washington during commencement week.

Mr. Sherrard formerly lived in Vandybilt and is now an attorney in this city. He received the Democratic nomination for assembly, winning in a field of five candidates. Mr. Bryson is a member of the faculty of the Uniontown High School. He was nominated for assembly by the Prohibition party without opposition.

Almost immediately after their college careers, Messrs. Sherrard and Bryson married Washington girls. Mr. Sherrard married Miss Vaughn Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Watson, of 208 East Wheeling street, Washington. Mr. Bryson married Miss Emma Spriggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Spriggs, of 315 East Beau street, Washington.

While in college, both young men were members of the college Young Men's Christian Association and the Franklin and Washington Literary Society. In his junior year Mr. Bryson was one of the editors of the Washington Jeffersonian and was a member of the junior "prom" committee.

As Fayette county's second legislative district elects three members to the legislature, both Sherrard and Bryson are telling their old schoolmates here that they can vote for both of them and still have another man to vote for.

MORGANTOWN WINS.

Local Colored Team is Defeated by West Virginia Buckles.

The colored team of Morgantown defeated the Connellsville team of colored employees of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad Decoration Day at Morgantown in a six inning game, winning 7-1. The boys from this place got only four hits, the team of Tom Blue being too much for them.

The weather was not very good, the skies being almost as cloudy as the players but this did not stop the colored team from going on the field.

New West Penn Stock.
The recent issue of $2,000 of 7 per cent preferred stock of the West Penn Power Company is now being offered to investors at $100 and accrued dividends per share. The stock is redeemable at $115 and accrued dividends upon six months' notice. The proceeds of the stock are to be used in making additions, improvements and extensions of the company's properties.

LAJOIE A HARD MASTER?
During a fanning bee the other day conversation turned to Larry Lajoie and the habit the Frenchman is said to have had of bewailing out younger players and making life miserable for them.
A number of failures of young players with the Cleveland club were told at Lajoie's door, but Bill Wambaugns spoke up in defense of the Frenchman.
"In all the time I played along side of him," said Wambaugns, "Larry never once bawled me out. He never made it hard for me, and he did everything to teach me the game."

LEONARD'S RING REQUISITES.

Possessing Coolness, Cleverness, Capacity, Courage and Crusher.
If Behay Leonard doesn't follow the highway that has been traveled by McGovern, Young Corbett, Nelson, Weigast, Ritchie and Welsh in order there is a chance for him to be the greatest lightweight that ever lived.
This New York kid has every detail that fits into championship class. He looked faster and worked with even greater cleverness than Freddie Welsh, one of the game's master mechanics. He can hit with either paw, he can stand a barrel, rushing pace, and there is no question about his gameness. He has the five big C's that are needed—coolness, cleverness, capacity, courage and crusher.
The lightweight who stops or eliminates Leonard will have no kick coming about a dull evening when the affair comes off.

LOTS OF HELP FOR RUSH.

Directors Appoint Eight Football Coaches at Princeton.
The athletic board of control at Princeton recently appointed eight football coaches to assist Head Coach Rush next fall.
The men are Harold Ballin, '15; Philp King, '20; A. T. Hildebrand, 1900; Samuel White, '12; Thomas Wilson, '13; Blumenthal, '13; Crutcher, former Washington and Jefferson star, now a student at Princeton seminary, and Ed Sloan, a senior in the university.

A Simple Matter.
"So you are in the market for a automobile?"
"Yes," said the man who likes to attract attention.
"Any particular make?"
"No. I merely want one that will make people turn around and stare at me when I pass."
"Oh, you don't need a special type for that. Get an ordinary car and exceed the speed limit." — Birmingham Age-Herald.

The change of fashions is the tax that the industry of the poor levies on the vanity of the rich.—Chamfort.

Your Car's Life Fluid

Impoverished blood soon puts a man out-of-the-running. Impoverished gasoline will do the same thing to a motor. Good gasoline has got to be more than something that flows through a brass screen, smells and costs money. Now, perhaps more than ever before, motorists must beware of mongrel fuels. Despite market conditions, the uniform boiling-point that made Atlantic Gasoline famous is steadfastly maintained. We couldn't afford to alter that, even if we would. Buy Atlantic by name.

CREST OF STEEL WAVE REACHED IS VIEW OF BANKERS

District 4 of Federal Reserve Board Reports on Business Conditions.

BETWEEN SEASONS FOR COAL

Railroads Not Buying Much Fuel Because Accumulation Taken On Some Months Ago Has Not Been Exhausted; The Pig Iron Situation Unusual.

Special to The Courier.
WASHINGTON, June 2.—Railroads are not taking much fuel owing to the fact that the accumulation in anticipation of a strike is not yet exhausted, says that part of a reported issued today by the Federal Reserve Board, referring to District 4, including Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky. In its statement of present business outlook and conditions in that district, it says:

"It is between seasons in the coal business. Late navigation has not fully gotten under way as regards the shipment of coal.

"It looks as if the crest of the wave in prices has been reached in the steel business. Both seller and buyer are of the opinion that their best interests will be served by maintaining present conditions. There are one or two lines, such as car building and structural work, that have fallen off in activity—first, because deliveries are somewhat extended and, second, because it is difficult for the buyer to figure out a remunerative return. The situation in the trade, however, is not regarded as any less strong, for specifications are still continuing in excess of shipments. Important steel companies have adopted the policy of writing down inventories out of earnings against the date when inventory values may come down automatically.

"Pig iron is moving forward from the furnaces at a faster rate than it is being made. A heavy percentage of furnaces are in blast than is usually the case at any one time, and without question many will have to go out for retelling and other causes from now on. The ratio between Bessemer pig iron at $21 per ton f. o. b. valley, and finished plates and shapes at between $55 and $60 a ton is most unusual.

WRIGHT-METZLER CO. GOLD BOND PREMIUM OFFER

Gold Bond Stamps Prove Innovation, Patrons of the Stores Realizing 1% On What They Spend.

Banks pay four per cent on what a person saves but the Wright-Metzler stores have gone the banking institutions one better and announce that beginning June 1 patrons of their Uniontown and Conneltsville stores will receive 4 per cent on what they spend. The plan, a local innovation, is to issue Gold Bond trading stamps with every 10 cent purchase; five stamps with every 50 cents purchase; 10 stamps with every purchase amounting to $1, and when the customer's stamp book is filled with 1,000 Gold Bond Trading Stamps it may be redeemed for $4 worth of merchandise, selected from any department except groceries. In the Wright-Metzler stores, or if the customer prefers may be exchanged for $3 cash. The stamps will also be given with all accounts paid in full by the 10th of the month.

One of the advantageous features of the Gold Bond Trading Stamp plan is the fact that there need be no waiting on the part of the holders of books when they are presented for redemption. Fittingly to inaugurate the plan, the Wright-Metzler stores will give absolutely free to every adult a stamp book and 20 Gold Bond Stamps to start their collection.

The Wright-Metzler stores are making arrangements whereby the consumer may receive Gold Bond Trading Stamps with practically everything he buys. Negotiations are now under way with bakers, grocers, dealers in meats, furniture, hardware, etc., to adopt these stamps. The books will thus fill the more rapidly and the savings, it is pointed out, will thereby be greater.

VILLA CURRENCY.

In Conneltsville, But in Very Limited Circulation.

Howard Ankeny, a Conneltsville boy, now district agent of the Good-year Rubber Company at El Paso, Tex., has sent to E. W. Horner a sample of the Villa currency which the bank had had printed by the bank.

The bill received is very fancifully designed and printed and has a face value of 5 pesos, or dollars, but its actual value among Mexicans and Americans along the border is at the rate of $500 for one real American dollar. In that territory this money is known as "wall paper."

HELP FOR WORKING WOMEN

Some Have to Keep on Until They Almost Drop. How Mrs. Conley Got Help.

Here is a letter from a woman who had to work, but was too weak and suffered too much to continue. How she regained health:

Frankfort, Ky.—"I suffered so much with female weakness that I could not do my own work, and I had to have it done for me. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound that I tried it. I took three bottles and I found it to be all I needed. Now I feel as well as ever I did and am able to do all my own work again."

recommend it to any woman suffering from female weakness. You may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. JAMES CONLEY, 516 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it will be confidential.

A PENNSYLVANIA MOTHER'S ADVICE

"Every Young Girl Should Use It"

McKeesport, Pa.—"When I was 15 years old, my mother being dead, a lady insisted on my using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I cannot tell you how glad I was of this and how I wish every young girl would use it at this time. I am now 45 years of age, have had 12 children, seven of whom are well, strong boys and girls. With the first four children I used 'Favorite Prescription' as well as 'Pleasant Pills,' according to directions, both before and after and had very little trouble. Quicker came now when I turn to Dr. Pierce's remedies for help and they never fail. The 'Pleasant Pills' have been a 'stand-by' with me for years for sick headache, constipation, etc. 'They do all you claim for them.' Mrs. FRANK H. MITCHELL, 2323 Fifth Avenue, McKeesport, Pa.

I feel the workings of nature. Backache, headache, low spirits, lassitude and pains are hard enough to bear. A! Don't wait! The medicine that every woman needs when passing through the changing days. It is not a secret prescription, for its ingredients are printed on the wrapper; it is a temperance medicine.

This bit of explanatory prose was entirely lost upon Mr. J. Wesley Cortwright. He was chewing the ends of his short mustaches and scowling thoughtfully upon the possible site of the future industrial city of the plain.

"Say, Brouillard," he cut in. "You got me too right to build that power dam, and you know the contracts for what material you'd rather buy than make, and I'll be excited if I don't take a shot at this downing proposition myself. I tell you, it looks pretty good to me. What do you say?"

"I say," laughed the young chief of construction, "that I'm only a hired man. You'll have to go a good ways further up on the authority ladder to close a deal like that. I'm sure it wouldn't require an act of congress."

"Well, by George, you might not ever that if we had to," was the optimistic assertion. "You think about it."

"I guess it isn't my think," said Brouillard, inclined to take the coffee pot rack's suggestion as the mere ravings of a money-mad promoter.

"As the government engineer in charge of this work, I couldn't afford to be distracted even by a friendly interjection in any such scheme as the one you are proposing."

"Of course, I suppose not," agreed the would-be promoter, sucking his under lip in a way obviously familiar to his antagonists in the wheat pit. Then he glanced at his watch and changed the subject abruptly. "Well, have to be straggling back to the engine wagon. Much obliged to you, Mr. Brouillard. Will you come down and see us off?"

At the final descent in the trail, with the Buckskin blankets showing hotly beyond the curtaining flaps, they passed at a step from romance to the crude realities.

The realities were basing themselves upon the advent of two newcomers, riding down the Chigirago trail to the ford which had been the scene of the fish slaughtering; a suburban shirt man in gaudy "chaps," a flannel shirt and a flapping Stetson, and a girl whose face reminded Brouillard of one of the Madonnas, whose name and painter he strove vainly to recall. Two seconds farther along the horses of the pair were sniffling suspiciously at the automobile, and the young man under the flapping hat was telling Van Bruce Cortwright what he thought of earthen fishermen in general, and of this present earthen fisherman in particular.

"Which the same, being translated into Buckskin English, hoots like this," he concluded. "Don't you tote any more fish cartridges into this here reservation; not no more whatever. Who says so? Well, if anybody should ask you, you might say it was the Smith foreman of the Tri-Circle outfit. No, I ain't no game warden, but what I say goes as she says. Savvy?"

Brouillard walked his companion down to the car and helped her to a seat in the tonneau. She popped him with a nod and a smile, and when he saw that the creatures were not troubling her he stepped aside and unconsciously fell to comparing the two—the girl on horseback and his walking mate of the canyon manse.

They had little enough in common, apart from their descent from Eve, he decided—and the decision itself was subconscious. The millionaire's daughter was a warm blonde, beautiful, queenly, a finished product of civilization and high-priced culture; a woman of the world. And the girl on horseback? A rather slight figure, a face winsome, mass of copper-brown hair, eyes . . .

He caught himself wondering if her cowboy-lover—had already jumped to the sentimental conclusion—had ever been able to look into those steadfast eyes and trifle with the truth.

When the high-slaughtering matter was finally settled—not by the tender of money that Mr. Cortwright had made—the man said and his pretty riding mate slipped through the ford and disappeared among the barren hills.

"Au revoir, Mr. Brouillard," said the princess, as the big car righted itself for the southward flight into the desert. "If I were you I shouldn't fall in love with the end-eyed pussies who ride like a man. Mr. Tri-Circle Smith might object, you know."

There was something about heart-warming in the bit of parting badinage, but the warmth melted away in a plain to a disconcerting chill if he could have heard Mr. J. Wesley Cortwright's remark to the great companion.

"He isn't going to be the dead easy mark, I hoped to find in the son of the old bankrupt hater-pitter, Gentle girl. But he'll come down and hook himself all right if the bait is well covered with his particular brand of anger. Don't you forget it."

CHAPTER IV
Sands of Pactolus

If Victor Brouillard had been disposed to speculate seriously upon the possibilities suggested by Mr. J. Wesley Cortwright on the occasion of the capitalist's brief visit to the Niangua, there was little leisure for it. Fairly outwitting his problem, Brouillard did not find himself hampered by departmental inertia. While he was rapidly organizing his forces for the constructive attack, the equipment and necessary material for the upbuilding of the great dam were piling up by the trainload on the sidetrack at Quiescent, and at once the man and don't kill him task of rushing the excavation outfit of machinery, teams, engineers, rock-drilling installations, steam shovels, and the like, over the War Arrow trail was begun.

During the weeks which followed, the same trail, and a little later that from the Navajo reservation on the south, were strung with antlike processions of laborers pouring into the shut-in valley at the foot of Mount Chigirago. Almost as if by magic a populous camp of tents, shelter sheds, and Indian fences sprang up in the level bottom of the future lake; campfires gave place to mesa kitchens; the commissary became a busy department store stocked with everything that thrifty or thrifless laborer might wish to purchase; and daily the great foundation scarings in the butte-trooping shoulders of Jack's mountain and Chigirago grew deeper and wider under the churning of the air-drills, the crashings of the dynamite and the rattle and clug of the steam shovels.

It was after the huge task of foundation digging was well under way and the work of constructing the small power dam in the upper canyon had been begun that the young chief of construction, busy with a thousand details, had his first forcible reminder of the continued existence of Mr. J. Wesley Cortwright.

It came in the form of a committal from Washington, forwarded by special post-rider service from Quiescent, and it called a halt upon the river power project, in accordance with the settled policy, the recommendation would refrain in the Niangua as elsewhere, from entering into competition with private citizens; would do nothing to discourage the investment of private capital. A company had been formed to take over the power production and to establish a plant for the manufacture of cement, and Brouillard was instructed to govern himself accordingly. For his information, the department letter went on to say, it was to be understood that the company was duly organized under the provisions of an act of congress; that it had bound itself to furnish power and material at prices satisfactory to the service; and that the relations between it and the government field-staff on the ground were to be entirely friendly.

"It's a graft—a pull down with a profit in it for some bunch of money lenders a little higher up," was the young chief's angry comment when he had given Grislow the letter to read. "Without knowing any more of the details than that letter gives, I'd be willing to bet a month's pay that this is the fine Italian hand of Mr. J. Wesley Cortwright!"

Grislow's eyebrows went up in doubtful interrogation.

"Doubt! I know the gentleman!" he quipped mildly. "I don't seem to recall the name."

"No, you don't know him. It was his motor party that was camping at the Buckskin ford the night we broke in here—the night when we saw the searchlight."

"And you met him? I thought you told me you merely went down and took a look—didn't you?"

"I didn't—that night. But the next morning they wanted to see the valley, and I showed them the way in. Cortwright is the multimillionaire pork packer of Chicago, and he went up into the air like a lunatic over the money-making chances there were to be in this job. I didn't pay much attention to his chattering at the time, it didn't seem remotely credible that anybody with real money to invest would plant it in the bottom of the Niangua reservoir."

"That night you said he is going to make his bluff good."

"That looks very much like it," said Brouillard sourly, pointing to the letter from Washington. "That scheme is going to change the whole face of nature for us up here, Grislow. It will spell trouble right from the jump."

"Oh, I don't know," was the deprecatory rejoinder. "It will relieve us of a lot of hideous industries—cut 'em out and bury 'em, so far as we are concerned."

"That part of it is all right, of course; but it won't end there; not by a hundred miles. Jobson says in that letter that the relations have got to be friendly! I'll bet anything you like that I'll have to go and read the riot act to those people before they've been twenty-four hours on their job!"

Grislow was trying the point of his mapping pen on his thumb nail. "Curious that this particular bit should drop into your pot of ointment on your birthday, wasn't it?" he remarked.

"O suffering John!" cried Brouillard ruefully. "Are you never going to forget that senseless bit of twaddle?"

"You're not giving me a chance to forget it," said the mapmaker soberly. "You told me that night that the seven-year characteristic was changed; and you're a changed man, Victor, I ever there was one. Moreover, it began that very night—or the next morning."

Brouillard laughed.

"All of which is had enough, you'd say, Murray; but it isn't the worst of it. I've just run up against another thing that is threatening to raise merry hell in this valley."

"I know," said the hydrographer slowly. "You've been having a scowling with Steve Massingale. Leashing told me about it."

"What of it, tell you?" Brouillard demanded half angrily.

"Oh, nothing much; nothing to make you not at him. He said he gathered the notion that the young scoundrel was trying to bully you."

"He was," was the brittle admission. "See here, Grislow."

The thing to be seen was a small buckskin bag which, when opened, gave up a paper packet folded like a medicine powder. The paper contained a spoonful of dust and pellets of metal of a dull yellow luster.

The hydrographer drew a long breath and fingered the nuggets. "Gold—placer gold!" he exclaimed, and Brouillard nodded and went on to tell how he had come by the bag and its contents.

"Massingale had an ax to grind, of course. You may remember that Harding talked lonely about the Massingale opposition to the building of the dam. There was nothing in it. The opposition was purely personal, and it was directed against Harding himself, with any Massingale for the exciting cause."

"That ain't—the elemental truth!" Grislow broke in warmly. He knew the miner's daughter fairly well by this time, and in common with every man on the staff, not excepting the staff's chief, would have fought for her in any cause.

Brouillard nodded. "I don't know what Harding did, but Smith, the Tri-angle-Circle foreman, tells me that Steve was on the warpath; he told Harding when he left, last summer, that he'd ever come back to Niangua, he'd come to stay—and stay dead."

"I never did like Harding any too well," the hydrographer's tentative comment, so Brouillard went back to the matter of the morning's chance and its golden outcome.

"That is only a little side issue. Steve Massingale came to me this morning with a proposal that was about as red-blooded as a slap in the face. Naturally, for good business reasons of their own, the Massingales want to see the railroad built over War Arrow pass into the Niangua. In some way Steve has found out that I stand pretty well with President Ford and the Pacific Southwestern people. His first break was to offer to incorporate the 'Little Susan' and give me a block of the stock if I'd give Ford's leg on the extension proposition."

"What?" queried Grislow.

"Exactly. You can imagine what I did him. Then he began to bully and juggle the club on me."

Again Grislow's smile was jocose.

"Well, when I turned him down, young Massingale began to bluster and to say that I'd have to boost the railroad deal, whether I wanted it or not. I told him he couldn't prove it, and he said he would show me. I'd take half an hour's walk up the valley with him. You know that long, narrow sandbar in the river just below the mouth of the upper canyon?"

Grislow nodded.

"That is where we went for the proof. Massingale dipped up a handful of the bar sand, which he asked me to wash out for myself. I did it, and you know the results there in that paper. That bar is comparatively rich placer dirt."

"Good Lord!" ejaculated the mapmaker. "Comparatively rich, you say?—and you washed this spoonful out of a bush?"

"Keep your head," said Brouillard solemnly. "Massingale explained that I had happened to make a discovery; that the bar wasn't any such bonanza as that first result would indicate. I proved that, too, by washing some more of it without getting any more than a few colors. But the fact remains: it's placer ground."

It was at this point that the larger aspect of the fact launched itself upon the hydrographer.

"A gold strike!" he gasped. "And we were planning to drown it under two hundred feet of a lake!"

Brouillard's laugh was harsh.

"Don't let the fever get hold of you, Grislow. Don't forget that we are here to carry out the plans of the reclamation service—which are more far-reaching and of a good bit greater consequence than a dozen placer mines. Massingale drove the peg down good and hard. If I would jump in and pull every possible string to hurry the railroad over the range, and keep on pulling them, the secret of the placer bar would remain a secret. Otherwise he, Stephen Massingale, would give it away, publish it, advertise it to the world. You know what that would mean for us, Murray."

"My word! I should say so! We'd have bottomland on the pile right now, with all the variations! Every white man in the camp would chuck his job in the hollow half of a minute and go to grab whatever he could get."

"That's it precisely," Brouillard acquiesced gloomily. "Massingale is a young tough, but he is shrewd enough, when he is sober. He had me dead to rights, and he knew it. 'You don't want any gold camp starting up here in the bottom of your reservoir,' he said; and I had to admit it."

Grislow had found a magnificent glass in the drawer of the mapping table, and he was holding it in focus over the small collection of grain, gold and nuggets. In the midst of the eager examination he looked up suddenly to say: "Hold on a minute. Why is Steve proposing to give this thing away? Why isn't he working the bar himself?"

"He explained that phase of it, after a fashion—said that placer mining was always more or less of a gamble, and that they had a sure thing of it in the 'Little Susan.' Of course, if the thing had to be given away he and his father would avail themselves of their rights as discoverers and take their chance with the crowd for the sake of the ready money they might get out of it. Otherwise they'd be content to let it alone and stick to their legitimate business, which is quartz mining."

"And to do that successfully they've got to have the railroad. How did you settle it finally?"

"He told me to take a week or two and think about it."

Grislow was biting the end of his penholder thoughtfully.

"What are you going to do about it, Victor?" he asked at length. "We can't stand for any more chaos than the gods have already doled out for us, can we?"

Brouillard took another long minute at the office window before he said: "What would you do if you were in my place, Murray?"

But at this the mapmaker put up his hands as if to ward off a blow.

"No, you don't!" he laughed. "I refuse to be the kind of a fool. But I'll venture a small prophecy: The golden secret will leak out. And after that, the deluge."

CHAPTER V

A Fire of Little Sacks

Two days after the arrival of the letter from Washington announcing the approaching invasion of private capital, Brouillard, returning from a horseback trip to the Buckskin, where Amos and Griffith were setting grade stakes for the canal diggers, found a visitor awaiting him in the camp headquarters office.

One glance at the thick-bodied, heavy-faced man chewing an extinct cigar while he made himself comfortable in the only approach to a lounge, chair that the office afforded was sufficient to awaken an alert antagonism. The big man introduced himself without taking the trouble to get out of his chair.

"My name is Hosford, and I represent the Niangua Improvement company as its manager and resident engineer," said the loungeer, shutting the door clear from one corner of his hard-bitten mouth to the other. "You're Brouillard, the government man, I take it?"

"Brouillard, if you please," was the crisp correction. And then with a perfunctory glance of the final saving trace of hospitality in tone or manner: "What can we do for you, Mr. Hosford?"

"A good many things, first and last. I'm two or three days ahead of my party, and you can put me up somewhere until I get a camp of my own. You've got some sort of an engineers' mess, I take it?"

"We have," said Brouillard briefly. "You'll make yourself at home with it."

Pennsylvania Centenarians

Andrew J. Wrick of Fern Ridge, Monroe County, recently celebrated passing the century mark of life. His father was a soldier in Washington's army.

A century of human life! Who can grasp its full significance? Tradition tells with vague hints of mysticism of such events when mankind was in its infancy, while romance has ever woven its thread through the legends of old age.

From time to time attention is called to people who have reached this extreme age. During the past year thirty-four persons over one hundred years of age died in Pennsylvania. The fullness of life as measured by the proverbial three-score years and ten sinks into insignificance beside this wonderful group of centenarians. The youngest of these infants of time was aged one hundred years, one month, nine days; and the oldest, one hundred and fifteen years, eleven months, twenty-six days.

While there is frequently some doubt attached to the statements of the actual age of very old people, according to the statement of Commissioner of Health, Samuel G. Dixon, the mortality records filed in the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Health in each of these instances seems to be authentic. Twenty-six of the thirty-four were females and eight were males. Twenty-eight were white and six were negro. Twenty-four were native-born and lived their entire lives within the State.

The message of vital statistics to the people of this day is that the span of human life is growing longer. Modern sanitation is gradually removing the dangers which beset its pathway. Old age is more attainable to those who live with open eyes and near to Nature's precepts.

"This power plant, haven't you?"

"Yes; and they are the property of the department. If you want them I'll turn them over to you upon a proper order from headquarters."

"That's a little more like it. Where did you say I'd find your wire office?"

Brouillard gave the information, and as Hosford went out Grislow came in and took his place at the mapping table.

"Glad you got back in time to save my life," he remarked paternally, with a shy glance at his chief. "It's been plowing furrows up and down my little potato patch all day."

"Humph! Digging for information, I suppose?" queried Brouillard.

"Just that; and he's been getting it, too. Not out of me, particularly, but out of everybody. Also, he was willing to impart a little. I've been in for the time of our lives, Victor."

"I know it," was the crabbed rejoinder.

"You don't know the tenth part of it," asserted the hydrographer slowly. "It's a modest name, 'The Niangua Improvement company,' but it is going to be like charity—covering a multitude of sins. Do you know what that plank-faced organizer has got up his sleeve? He is going to build us a neat, up-to-date little city right here in the middle of our midst. If I hadn't made him believe that I was only a draftsman he would have had me out with a transit, running the lines for the streets."

"A city?—in this reservoir bottom? I guess not. He was only stringing you to kill time, Grislow."

"Don't you fool yourself!" exclaimed the mapmaker. "He's got the plans in his grip. We're going to be on a little reservation set apart for us by the grace of God and the kindness of those promoters. The remainder of the valley is laid off into cuts, little squares and streets, with everything named and numbered, ready to be listed in the brokers' offices. You may not be aware of it, but this palatial office building of ours fronts on Chigirago avenue."

"Sure!" said Brouillard. "What has all this bubble blowing got to do with the building of a temporary dam and the setting up of a couple of cement kilns?"

Grislow laid his pen aside and whirled around on his working stool.

"Don't you make any easy-going mistake, Victor," he said earnestly. "Two main and power propositions are only a side issue. These new people are going to take over the sawmills, open up quarries, build a stub railroad to the Hopph mines, grade a practical stage road over the range to Quiescent, and put on a fast-mule freight line to serve until the railroad builds in. Wouldn't that set your teeth on edge?"

"I can't believe it, Murray. It's a lot out of the back of Bedard! Take a fair shot at it and see where the bullet lands; this entire crazy fable is built upon one solitary, lonesome fact—the fact that we're here, with a job on our hands big enough to create an active, present-moment market for labor and material. There is absolutely nothing else behind the bubble blowing. If we were not here the Niangua Improvement company would never have been heard of."

Grislow laughed. "Your arguing that twice two makes four doesn't change the iridescent hue of the bubble," he volunteered. "Big money has seen a chance to skin somebody, the mere fact that the end of the world is due to come along down the pike some day isn't going to cut any obstructing figure. We'll all be buying and selling corner lots in Hosford's new city before we're a month older. Don't you believe it?"

"I'll believe it when I see it," was Brouillard's reply; and with this the matter rested for the moment.

GREAT CROWDS GREETED HIM LAST NIGHT

Has Engaged Suite of Rooms at Columbia Hotel, Where His Staff of Physicians Can Be Consulted Free of Charge. See and Hear This Great Man Tonight.

A party of friends and admirers who gathered around the Great Specialist, in his splendidly appointed suite of rooms at the Columbia Hotel, were treated to some of his rare and interesting comments on human nature last night. Such a close observer of human affairs has this eminent specialist been that it can truthfully be said of him, "He speaks with absolute authority." "Of course," said the Great Spiegel, "in my practical experience there frequently comes under my observation every degree and phase of human character."

"Many times the basest ingratitude has been my portion, while on other occasions it has been my pleasure to witness such acts of gratitude and appreciation of my efforts that they were little short of the pathetic. There is an old theory to the effect that we professional men must not let sentiment affect us, but when one sifts the proposition down thoroughly it will readily be seen that, after all, one touch of nature makes the whole world kin."

"Some time ago," continued Spiegel, "a widow, impoverished in health, happiness and purse, brought her only child to me for treatment. It was a sad-eyed, emaciated little creature, on whose features were plainly written both despair and suffering. I concluded that a treatment would cure the child's affliction. In a few weeks I dismissed the child as cured. The mother tearfully informed me she was without funds, but insisted and begged that I take a mortgage on her little home until she was able to pay cash. I informed her she was not indebted to me at all and I felt repaid for my trouble by virtue of relieving the poor."

The Great Spiegel defies and willingly will battle with any disease in the line of deafness, paralysis, rheumatism, stiff joints, crooked limbs. He invites everybody who suffers to come upon his stage nightly and he will demonstrate free of cost how much good he can do in five minutes. His headquarters will be at the Hotel near the show grounds, where he can be consulted in regard to all disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys; likewise private diseases of men and women.

The show attracted an immense crowd last night. The band carried by the Great Spiegel, played a concert last night at 7 o'clock on Bannockburn Corner, and from the remarks passed by the citizens of Connelville he deserves great credit in giving the people such a rare treat, for the band certainly played some ragtime music. The show will start at 7:30 P. M. at the Carnival Grounds, West Side.
